Writing

leaf?

The book "Portrait of Dorian Gray" is not only about immortal beauty.

People who are learning ^{the} English language sometimes ~~are~~ ^{is} thinking about English culture and history. But there's not so ^{many} much of brave people who want to read serious historical books. So what can they do instead of it? Not only tutors or teachers can get us acquainted with details of English culture and history.

I can advise to teenagers to read English classical literature. And I would recommend Oscar Wilde, for example his book "Portrait of Dorian Gray". We used to think that this book ^{is} about beautiful man whose soul ~~is~~ was closed in ^{the} picture made by artist and man's friend. But that's not all about this book. Oscar Wilde is a classic writer in English literature, so we can see historical England by Wilde's hand. He wrote a book about ~~the~~ country and its citizens. ~~We can see this from Wilde's view.~~

So what is the plot? It's about a young man who was afraid of getting older and lost beauty of his appearance. His desire in result caught Dorian Gray, the main character, in a trap of his own mind and desire being young forever. Dorian Gray is an irresponsible and not serious person who can't even decide what hobby is interesting enough for him. In the end Dorian destroyed his portrait and died because he killed his soul.

In this book reader can see details of lives English people. And also he can see England in Wilde's descriptions, and also because I like this book because I'm fan of classic. ~~This book is also one of my favourites because I like to see unusual characters and how was life in past.~~

~~I recommend this book. By this plot you can see how was life in English history and what type of people has been living.~~
